Speech Pathology

Speech Pathologists study, diagnose and treat communication/swallowing disorders, including difficulties with speech, language, fluency, voice, reading/writing and feeding.

They work with many different adults and children who have difficulty communicating and/or swallowing food and drink safely.

They may experience difficulties due to some the following reasons:

- developmental delays e.g. delayed speech and/or language (talking and understanding)
- stroke/brain injuries
- dementia
- stuttering
- learning disability/intellectual disability
- cerebral palsy, autism
- dyslexia (difficulties learning to read)
- abnormalities in the structures of the head, neck and face such as cleft lip or palate
